Committed to building a confident regional publishing industry, KITAB is showcasing publishing developments in the Arab world at the Frankfurt Book Fair this week, where they will co-host two important sessions on the professional programme. His Excellency Jumaa Al Qubaisi, Director of the National Library and the Abu Dhabi International Book Fair, said: "Building a knowledge-based economy relies on enabling people to access books and reading which in turn must be supported by a confident regional publishing industry. Abu Dhabi and KITAB are proud to be leading the way in promoting the region's publishing industry at such an important international book fair."

EDUCATION & CULTURE

AL AIN CATCHES THE BOOK BUZZ AT 'AL AIN READS'

Al Ain's biggest book show to date, Al Ain Reads, drew hundreds of students and general visitors to a packed Bawadi Mall in Al Ain. Sponsored by Al Ain Municipality and Abu Dhabi Media Company and in partnership with the Sheikh Mohammed bin Khaled Al Nahyan Cultural Centre and the House of Arts, activities aimed at promoting reading brought the community together to celebrate a love of books.

His Excellency Jumaa Al Qubaisi, Director of the National Library and Abu Dhabi International Book Fair said: "Building a knowledge-driven society depends on the establishment of a culture of learning, especially among the young. The success of Al Ain Reads book show signals the enthusiasm of the community of Al Ain to take the fullest advantage of all the opportunities available."

Monika Krauss, General Manager of KITAB, said: "Making reading part of everyday lives is our aim and Al Ain Reads has brought the community together to take another great leap towards achieving it. We at KITAB have been overwhelmed by the success and support Al Ain Reads has received by the local community and are thankful to our partners for their assistance in delivering a great community event."

In line with KITAB's aim to provide new and exciting opportunities for people to access books and reading, the show attracted participation from over 30 local schools and more than 3000 local school children who participated in a host of activities ranging from story-telling sessions to illustration workshops. Meanwhile, some 25 exhibitors from across the Emirates and wider region displayed their products, building on the new opportunity to access a wider market for their books.

Al Ain Reads book show provided a platform for KITAB to launch two new reading promotion activities. KITAB's BookExchange, where visitors were encouraged to bring an old book and exchange it for a new one, brought together local booklovers keen to try something new. Over 500 new books were handed out at the BookExchange counter at Bawadi Mall on Friday, 9 October.

Meanwhile, Al Ain Reads also hosted the launch of the KITAB Bus: National Mobile Library. Supported by KITAB, the Abu Dhabi Authority for Culture and Heritage and the Zayed Giving Initiative, and in partnership with the Abu Dhabi Chamber of Commerce & Industry, Emirates Transport, the Goethe-Institut Gulf Region and the Swiss Embassy, the bus was stationed at Bawadi Mall for the duration of the show and venturing out to public locations in the evening, enthralling children and adults alike. The first of its kind in the UAE, the bus hosted a special read-aloud session for local school children with the Swiss Ambassador to the UAE and the German Counsellor for Culture and Press Affairs in the UAE. The next stop for the KITAB Bus: National Mobile Library will be Abu Dhabi in November, followed by the Western Region in December.

WHAT'S NEW

Al Ain Rotana officially received the title of "5 star"

Al Ain Rotana was built in 1999 and since then, it under went many renovations such as the new extension, Bodyline health and leisure club, squash courts, massage rooms, Moodz lounge bar as well as Min Zaman restaurant.

On 1st of October 2009, the hotel officially received and installed the 5-Star plaque. Representatives from Abu Dhabi Tourism Authority (ADTA) were on hand to present this valuable plaque to the hotel.

Ayman Gharib commented, "My team and I have worked so hard for this and we earned this title." He continued, "If you compare the new Al Ain Rotana with 3 years ago, you will find that this property has been growing dramatically. Apart from all the implemented projects, there are 2 new developments in the pipeline to be completed before the end of 2009. These include the new all-day dining restaurant which will replace the famous Gardinia, as well as a tennis court."

The new all-day dining which will be the newest hotel restaurant in town, will serve breakfast, lunch and dinner, and feature live cooking stations. "Our target is to be fully operational by December 2009, where we will introduce a whole new concept in Al Ain, focusing on live cooking buffet restaurant." said Ayman Gharib. He continued, "Being the only 5-star hotel in town, we are aiming to introduce as many new concepts and facilities as possible in order to give the truly Rotana hospitality to all our guests and clients."

Bawadi Mall opens 2000 m² skating rink, first such artificial rink in M.E.

The region's first artificial skating rink spread over an area of 2,000 square metres has been opened in Bawadi Mall in Al Ain. The facility consists of a rink with a capacity of 200 skaters, services and spectator area.

Khalid Shraim, Marketing Manager, Bawadi Mall said: "We take pride in introducing this new technology to the Middle East. These types of rinks are found in France, Switzerland, Germany and Malaysia. The new technology is suitable for metal blade shoes and roller shoes, offering a great experience to both professionals and amateurs. The rink's net area is 800 square metres."

This rink is part of Bawadi Mall's strategy to deliver world class entertainment activity to visitors and higher return on investment to tenants. The mall has been recording a steady rise in footfall, including visitors from the 13-29 age group.

Shraim added: "The new skating rink is part of the 10,000 sq. m. Family Entertainment Center which offers exciting ambience to the whole family, featuring a varied mix of entertainment activity, including a 12-lane bowling alley, a distinctively rich food-court, and several casual dining options offering delicious varieties of cuisines."

Bawadi Mall, developed by Nael & Bin Harmal Inv. Co. L.L.C., houses a mix of international as well as regional retail brands of fashion, food, jewellery and much more, all in a bright, spacious, and inviting environment, distinguished by a wide curved vaulted skylight that soars above the main corridor and its main three spacious courts.

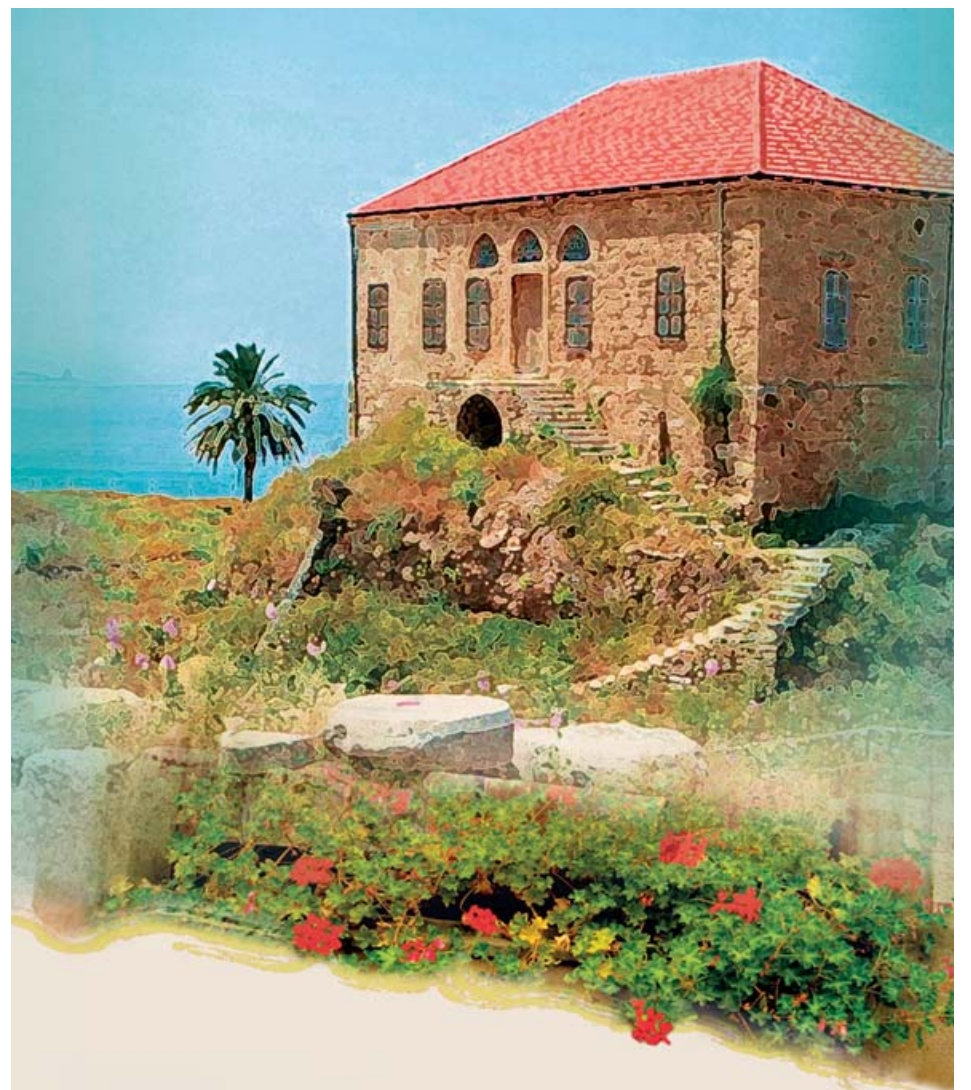

Shraim added: "The GCC shopping industry competes with the best in the world, in terms of infrastructure. The malls are not just venues to sell products, but a place where people relax, unwind and have fun."

Shraim added: "Healthy competition amongst shopping centers in the UAE boosts innovation in attracting customers and tenants. The shopping industry is highly dependent on retail industry; the stronger the former gets, the more mature becomes the latter. Also, shopping centers are key drivers in boosting tourism".

The 140,000 square metres Bawadi Mall, with a gross leasable area of 110,000 square metres, positions itself as Al Ain's ultimate shopping, dining and leisure destination, located just five minutes from the town center on "Mezyad Road", which can be conveniently accessed, avoiding the congested city roads.

Bawadi Mall comes at a time where Al Ain city is expanding dramatically. It provides an ideal shopping experience for people of the UAE and beyond. The shopping sector in the UAE is very robust, and this explains why top brands are setting their sights on this region, away from their home countries. New brands have made their debut in the Al Ain city through Bawadi Mall, such as Zara, Mango, MAX, Marks & Spencer, Kotton, New Look, H&M, ACE Hardware amongst others.

DISCOVERING ARDI

A DISCOVERY CHANNEL EXCLUSIVE, WORLD PREMIERE SPECIAL AND COMPANION WEBSITE DOCUMENTS THE RESEARCH BEHIND BREAKING NEWS ABOUT HUMAN EVOLUTION

Following the publication in the journal Science on the find and study of a 4.4 million-year-old female partial skeleton nicknamed "Ardi," Discovery Channel presented a world premiere special named DISCOVERING ARDI, that premiered in the Middle East on Saturday, December 12 2009 at 20:00. To accompany the program, Discovery today launched an extensive website, www.discovery.com/ardi, for people who want to know more about "Ardi" and her surroundings.

The scientific investigation that began in the Ethiopian desert 17 years ago opens a new chapter on human evolution, revealing the first evolutionary steps our ancestors took after we diverged from a common ancestor we once shared with living chimpanzees. "Ardi's" centerpiece skeleton, the other hominids she lived with, and the rocks, soils, plants and animals that made up her world were analyzed in laboratories around the globe. The scientists have now published their findings in the prestigious journal Science.

"Ardi" is now the oldest skeleton from our (hominid) branch of the primate family tree. These Ethiopian discoveries reveal an early grade of human evolution in Africa that predated the famous Australopithecus nicknamed "Lucy." Ardipithecus was a woodland creature with a small brain, long arms, and short legs. The pelvis and feet show a primitive form of two-legged walking on the ground, but Ardipithecus was also a capable tree climber, with long fingers and big toes that allowed its feet to grasp like those of an ape. The discoveries answer questions

Video features at www.discovery.com/ardi include a multiple playlist:

- Building an Ancestor - How science and advanced engineering technology transformed a fragile partial skeleton into a walking, tree-climbing digital hominid.
- Why We Stood Up - Video extras featuring Dr.

Owen Lovejoy making the case for his compelling theory of why our ancestors took a chance on bipedality.

- The Discoverers Speak

- Reflections, conclusions and questions from the Ethiopian and American team scientists.
